BOND ISSUE WOULD HELP

COLUMBUS, O.—The attractive future which will be assured the state welfare department if a proposed bond issue is approved at the November election will provide for the expenditure of fully $1,000,000 at the Apple Creek Institution for the Feeble Minded, Assistant Director W. J. Kennedy disclosed today.

A program of expenditures which would be carried out if the public adopts the $7,500,000 plan suggested by the legislature's special taxation committee would allot the Wooster institution more than any other unit in the welfare department system, Kennedy told International News Service.

Kennedy declared that the detailed program will be made public before the public is asked to cast a ballot in the November referendum.

Hawthornden farm at Cleveland, he said, would receive $650,000 under the tentative plan. Longview hospital at Cincinnati would obtain $500,000 and $200,000 would be expanded at the Dayton State hospital.

A new residence for the warden of the Ohio Penitentiary, along with headquarters for the new four-member parole board and criminal research divisions, probably would be erected at a cost of about $100,000.

Massillon State hospital's share would be $125,000 and the Ohio State sanitorium at Mt. Vernon would get $250,000. Nearly all other institutions would share in the program to relieve congestion

Kennedy said he believed Ohio is so convinced of the need of welfare improvements that it will approve the bond issue plan without protest.

CAMPS PLANNED FOR 4-H CLUBS

COLUMBUS, O.—Between four and five thousand farm boys and girls in Ohio will attend camps to be conducted this summer with the help of the state 4-H club department, according to a statement made here by Guy W. Dowdy, assistant state 4-H club leader at Ohio State university.

Beginning July 6, three district camps will attract some 300 older boys and girls from about 70 counties in the state. The camps, which prepare leaders in 4-H club work to assist in forwarding local and county club programs, will be held at Camp Ohio, at Camp Crag, near Brunswick in Medina-co, and at the southwest Ohio camp near Clifton in Greene-co.

For eight weeks following the district camps, Dowdy said, some 60 counties in the state will hold county 4-H camps which will be attended by between four and five thousand rural boys and girls.

Besides 4-H camps, about 20 counties will hold camps for farm women. This year 600 rural women are expected to spend a three-day vacation away from dishwashing, cooking and other household tasks at the camps.

Survey Of U. S. Schools Finds Lincoln Still Idol

BERKELEY, Cal. — There are American heroes and more American heroes, but Abraham Lincoln still remains the idol of the American Boy—and Girl.

At least that it how it stands if a survey made by L. A. Williams, professor of education at the University of California may be taken as a guide.

In his survey, Lincoln was mentioned 2,143 times out of a possible 2,216; George Washington ranked second with 2,113.

Professor Williams made the survey to determine the person-consciousness of pupils in junior and senior high schools. The professor noted a marked tendency to emphasize political and military leadership and a tendency to neglect leadership in the fine arts.

Only a few women were named, few Biblical characters, or classical names and movie actors.

Others named in order after Lincoln and Washington were Burbank, Edison, Columbus, Roosevelt, Wilson, Ford, Pershing, Franklin, Coolidge, Grant, Longfellow and Napoleon.

Women ranked well down the list of preferences. Joan of Arc led with 137 votes. Helen Keller was second with 114. Others named in order were Helen Wills Moody, Betsy Ross, Florence Nightengale, Clara Barton, Susan B. Anthony, and Galli-Curci.

Among Biblical characters, Jesus was mentioned 89 times, Moses 83, and David 26 Solomon, Saul, and Abraham were the only others mentioned by more than five.

Of the classical characters Julius Caesar was far in the lead, named 674 times Aristotle and Socrates were mentioned frequently.

Mary Pickford was by far the most popular movie star, with Doublas Fairbanks and Charles Chaplin ranking next.

In literature Shakespeare led with 787 votes, while Caruso led all in the field of music.

In science Luther Burbank led Thomas Edison with a two vote margin, 1,643 to 1,641.

In politics it was Lincoln, Washington and Roosevelt, with Wilson, Coolidge, Jefferson, Harding, and Mussolini among the "also rans."

Theodore Roosevelt was looked upon as among the greatest military leaders

Street Frocks Of The Summer Stress Spirals

PARIS.—Street frocks for summer wear stress spirals. They come by way of one-sided peplums, bows and sashes, with the emphasis and a slight overbalance on the left side.

One of the popular Dolly Sisters is sporting one of the new wool street frocks with the new spiral line indicated by incrustations of the material starting from godets. It has lingerie collars and cuffs and she wears it with two lovely fox skins.

Joseph Paquin puts the spiral movement on a white crepe street gown with groups of flat pleats on the left side. The color note comes in red silk plaid at the cuffs and on triangular insets over the pockets. A long wool jacket in the same plaid pattern accompanies it.

Georgette uses black crepe de chine with a spiral yoke about the hips. It is edged with white pique.

Strikingly smart as well as very much spiral, is an afternoon dress from Lucient Lelong of eyelet-embroidered red chiffon. The diagonal effect begins with the capelet-bertha on the blouse which functions from the right shoulder making a little sleeve, around the back, over the left shoulder and down the bodice front to the right side of the waistline. A scalloped band winds spirally around the upper skirt.
